RE: Restoring Internet Freedom (WC Docket No. 17-108) Comments

Dear Chairman Pai and Commissioners,

This letter is in response to the comments filed in the Restoring Internet Freedom docket, WC Docket No. 17-108. The International Leadership Foundation ("ILF") has further examined the Notice of Proposed Rulemaking and we stand by our original comments filed in the docket on July 13, 2017.

ILF maintains that every community should have access to a full, open, and free internet regardless of background, color, or location. The internet plays a large role in ILF's work and is indispensable to our members' access to critical resources. Therefore, broadband regulation remains a priority for our organization.

As we stated in our initial filing, there are two essential parts of this priority. First, there must be clear and consistent net neutrality rules. Second, internet access must be expanded.

With regard to net neutrality rules, we still believe, above all, that Congress should take the helm by passing legislation that ensures the principles of transparency, no blocking, no throttling, and no harmful prioritization, across all channels of the internet. With regard to expanding internet access, there must be regulatory stability—with regulations that are not overly burdensome—so that Internet Service Providers invest more in network expansion and innovation.

Ultimately, upon reviewing other comments in WC Docket No. 17-108, ILF is encouraged in our view that until Congress enacts lasting change regarding this issue, the removal of Title II classification of broadband and the restoration of less burdensome regulation will open the
